To Spread The Truth
Or Control The Truth

Recently, the pronounced bastion of Freedom and Truth,
The Spotlight newspaper, has implemented a very disturbing policy of refusing advertising from any Patriotic publication they deem as competitive to the further sales and income revenue of themselves.

We, and all Patriotic Americans, should be alarmed at this decision; for it doesn't speak so much of newspaper sales, as it does of Freedom of Press, denial to readers of alternative truth sources, and an attempt at controlling the message delivered to Patriots throughout the nation.

The Spotlight's own words,
written by Jim Wolfington,
Advertising Manager, states incredibly the following:

We have found that more readers or potential subscribers are turned off by ads we run for publications that are competitive to our own paper.

The Spotlight went on to further state: For this reason, we are carefully scrutinizing all ads to try and avoid this problem, which has had a negative impact on the inflow of new subscriptions and renewals.

What is most appalling about this statement is Spotlight's stance that they will decide what and whom their readers may read in addition to The Spotlight.

Does The Spotlight's management not believe their readers are capable and intelligent enough to evaluate and decide for themselves
what's in their best interest, and where their sources of truth may derive from?

The responsibility to present true Freedom of Press includes offering the knowledgeable reader all viewpoints. If Spotlight wishes to eliminate all published patriotic views except their own; then they have fallen into the same genre as the establishment press.

The Ultra-Liberal Zionist controlled New York Times would never consider carrying ads of a Patriotic-nature publication; we expect that.
Their views are wholly Liberal;
we expect that.

We don't expect a patriotic publication to offer controlled views. Colony News will always offer advertising and viewpoint space for everyone's interest. Our readers are capable of deciding on their own.

Is Senior Citizen's Greed Destroying Young America?

By: Marge Zinther

Graying America refuses to be means-tested for benefits

America is aging, the number of senior citizens is projected to reach 53 million by the year 2020, and 80 million by 2050. States expected to double their senior population by 2020 are Alaska, Arizona, California, Georgia, Nevada, Utah and Washington.

With this explosive graying of America come huge social benefit costs; cost that will be unrealistic to meet in the very near future. It is estimated taxes needed to provide the over 65 population with social benefits will consume 83% of a working-age American within just 20 years!

Obviously, this is an unacceptable price. But, are there any credible answers to this upcoming financial, social disaster in waiting?

We think so. Later in this article is a demonstration of how the Country of Chile addressed this same problem. You may find their solution acceptable, if not at least noteworthy of discussion and examination.

Closer to home, senior citizens must be able to dismiss the mindset that AARP and most senior organizations hold on to; that is their feeling because they have attained the lofty age of 65 plus they are Entitled to everything in life for Free! Please show me where in the Constitution which Article grants senior citizens the automatic right to a socialist state and system of their own.

In order to correct the inequities both by the receiving older population and the giving younger population, Means testing for Social Security and Medicare is a prerequisite. We are not talking about taking the food out of the mouths of the elderly who could survive without state-sponsored assistance. We are talking about those who well can afford to live independently on their own.

A few years ago Chrysler Chairman of the Board Lee Iococca appeared on television to denounce a Social Security system that provided him a monthly check; even though he neither needed, nor wanted it. He was worth tens of millions of dollars at the time-yet this insane system was only willing to dole out-at taxpayers expense, a monthly stipend. There are other examples that point out the greed and or stupidity of the present system:

Atlantic City, NJ, that gambling Sodom by the Sea is visited each day of the week by a gaming population that comprised of 75% senior citizens. You can't find a slot-machine or gaming table available because of the mob of seniors crowding into the Mecca willingly spending their much needed Social Security check I imagine. The question begs answering, if seniors are so dependent on Social Security and Medicare, how do they manage to obtain, and justify the daily donations they bestow upon the Casinos and the state?

Another example is a 93 year old gentleman I spoke with recently who confided his house was worth $225,000, (which he bought for $2,200 60 years ago) and he had $175,000 in Mutual Funds and CD's, plus $27,000 in his checking account which he proudly boasted he did not even need. When I questioned him as to what his use for a Social Security check (which he has been receiving for 28 years now) was, his answer was typical of most seniors: I paid into it, It's mine and I deserve it.

Pardon me, but that attitude is both incorrect and selfish! The Social Security Administration estimates if the average American were to receive back all the funds they contributed to the system in a 40 year working lifespan, it would take 4 years for full repayment. The Social Security system, designed in the thirties, was not intended for the life-age expectancy of today.

By the way, this gentleman and his now deceased wife (she lived to be 87) were not high-wage earners during their lifetime. He was a minor draftsman and she a teacher, hardly upper crust.

All across America today millions of young families and singles are moving back into their parents houses. In some cases they never leave. Be assured you, the readers, or someone you closely know is affected with this trend. It's pervasive in our society today. And it isn't because the kids don't want their own homesteads; its because they simply cannot afford to live on their own, and that's because 40 to 50% of their earnings are being taxed to provide social programs for immigrants, generations of non-working poor and well-off senior citizens.

Why do I say the seniors of today are selfish? Because during their working days taxes were minuscule compared to today. They obtained homes and wealth based on a sizable proportionate take-home salary. Taxes in 1951 were 3% of weekly wage.

Means testing for senior social benefits is a must. What the exact cut-off point should be we'll leave to the economic professors, but, taxing young working families today for the sake of providing millionaires monthly checks is insulting, and dangerous. A developing generation gap between the youth of today and seniors is becoming unhealthy. As many young Americans observe seniors living it up on vacation resorts and in Casinos, while they working two and sometimes three jobs to make ends meet; resentment grows.

The following consists of another possible solution: The complete elimination of a government Social Security system.

Chile's Reform of Social Security with a Privatized Plan

Jose Pinera, Chile's minister of labor, who was responsible for privatizing the state pension system, explains the intricacies of a privatized pension system as thus:

I will not bother explain the shortcomings of the old pay-as-you-go system in Chile. Those shortcomings are very well known because that is the system that is failing all over the world.

In Chile we accomplished a revolutionary reform. We knew cosmetic changes-increasing the retirement age, increasing taxes, would not be enough. We understood the pay-as-you-go system had a fundamental flaw. That flaw was lack of a link between what people put into their pension program and what they take out. In a government system, contributions and benefits are unrelated because they are defined politically, by the power of pressure groups.

So we decided to go in the other direction, to link benefits to contributions. The money that a worker pays into the system goes into an account that is owned by the worker. We called the idea a capitalization scheme.

We decided that the minimum contribution should be 10% of wages. But workers may contribute up to 20%. The money contributed is deducted from the worker's taxable income. The money is invested by a private institution, and the returns are untaxed. By the time a worker reaches retirement age—65 for men, 60 for women—a sizable sum of capital has accumulated in the account. At retirement the worker transforms that lump sum into an annuity with an insurance company. He can shop among different insurance companies to find the plan that best suits his personal and family situation. He pays taxes when the money is withdrawn but usually at a lower rate than he would have paid when he was working.

A worker can contribute more than 10% if he wants a higher pension or if he wants to retire early. Individuals have different preferences: some want to work until they are 85, others want to go fishing at 55, or 50, or 45, if they can. The uniform pay-as-you-go social security system does not recognize differences in individual preferences. In Chile, those differences had led to pressure on the congress to legislate different retirement ages for different groups. As a result, we had a discriminatory retirement age system. Blue-collar workers could retire at 65; white-collar workers could retire at 55; bank employees could retire after 25 years of work; and the most powerful group of all, those who make the laws, the congressmen, were able to retire after 15 years of work.

Under the new system, you don't have to pressure anyone. If you want to retire at 55, you go to one of the pension-fund companies and sit in front of a user-friendly computer. It asks you at what age you want to retire. You answer 55. The computer then does some calculations and says that you must contribute 12.1% of your income to carry out your plan. You then go back to your employer and instruct him to deduct the appropriate amount. Workers thus translate their personal preferences into tailored pension plans. If a worker's pension savings are not enough at the legal retirement age, the government makes up the difference from general tax revenue.

The system is managed by competitive private companies called AFPs. Each AFP operates the equivalent of a mutual fund that invests in stocks, bonds, and government debt. The AFP is separate from the mutual fund, so if the AFP goes bankrupt, the assets of the mutual fund—that is, workers' investments—are not affected. The regulatory board takes over the fund and asks the workers to change to another AFP. Not a dime of the workers' money is touched in the process. Workers are free to change from one AFP to another. That creates competition among the companies to provide a higher return on investment and better customer service, or to charge lower commissions.

Today we have 20 AFPs. In 14 years no AFP has gone bankrupt. Workers have not lost a dime. Of course, we created a regulatory body that, along with the central bank, set some investment diversification rules. Funds cannot invest more than x percent in government bonds, y percent in private companies' debentures, or z percent in common stocks. Nor can more than a specified amount be in the stock of any given company, and all companies in which funds are invested must have credit ratings above a given level.

We set up such transitional rules with a bias for safety because our plan was to be radical in approach but conservative and prudent in execution. We trust the private sector, but we are not naïve. We knew that there were companies that might invest in derivatives and lose a lot of money. We didn't want the pension funds investing the workers' money in derivatives in Singapore. So, only three years ago we began to allow the funds to invest abroad, which they weren't allowed to do initially.

Regarding transition to the new system, we began by assuring every retired worker that the state would guarantee his pension; he had absolutely nothing to fear from the change. Pension reform should not damage those that have contributed all their lives. If that takes a constitutional amendment, so be it.

Second, the workers already in the workforce, who had contributed to the state system, were given the option of staying in the system even though we thought its future was problematic. Those who moved to the new system received what we call a "recognition bond"; which acknowledges their contributions to the old system. When those workers retire, the government will cash the bonds.

New workers have to go into the new private system because the old system is bankrupt. Thus, the old system will inevitably die on the day that the last person who entered that system passes away. On that day the government will have no pension system whatsoever. The private system is not a complementary system; it is a replacement that we believe is more efficient.

Chile had state owned enterprises. In America I understand that the federal government owns a third of the land. I don't know why the government owns land, and I don't know the value. What I am saying is that when you consider privatizing Social Security, you must look at assets as well as liabilities. I am sure the U.S. Government had gigantic assets. Are they more or less than the liabilities of the Social Security system?

In Chile we calculated the real balance sheet and, knowing there was enough assets, financed the transition without raising taxes, generating inflation, or pressuring interest rates upward. In the last several years, we have had a fiscal surplus of 1 to 2 % of GNP.

The main goal and consequence of the pension reform is to improve the lot of workers during their old age. As I will explain, the reform has a lot of side effects: savings, growth, capital markets.

After 14 years and because of compound interest, the system is paying old-age pensions that are 40 to 50 % higher than those paid under the old system. In the case of disability and survivor pensions, another privatized insurance, pensions are 70 to 100 % higher than the old system.

But there have been other enormous effects. A second—and, extremely important, is that the new system reduces what can be called the payroll tax on labor. The social security contributions were seen by workers and employers as basically a tax on the use of labor; and a tax on the use of labor reduces employment. But a contribution to an individual pension account is not seen as a tax on the use of labor. Unemployment in Chile is less than 5 %. And that is without disguised unemployment in the federal government. We are approaching full employment in Chile. That's very different from a country like Spain, with a socialist government for the last 12 years, that has an unemployment rate of 24 %.

Chile's private pension system has been the main factor in increasing the savings rate to the level of an Asian tiger. Our rate is 26% of GNP. The dramatic increase in the savings rate is the main reason that Chile is not suffering from the so-called tequila effect that plagues Mexico.

Before pension reform Chile had a real growth rate of 3.5 %. For the last 10 years we have been growing at the rate of 7 %.

Finally, the privatized pension system has had a very important political and cultural consequence. 90% of Chile's workers chose to move into the new system. Those workers freely decided to abandon the state system, even though some of the trade union leaders and the old political class advised against it.

Every Chilean worker knows that he is the owner of an individual pension account. We have calculated that the typical Chilean worker's main asset is not his house or his car but the capital in his pension account.

When Chile grows at 7 % or when the stock market doubles, as in the last 3 years, Chilean workers benefit directly, through higher wages, more employment and through additional capital in their individual pension accounts.

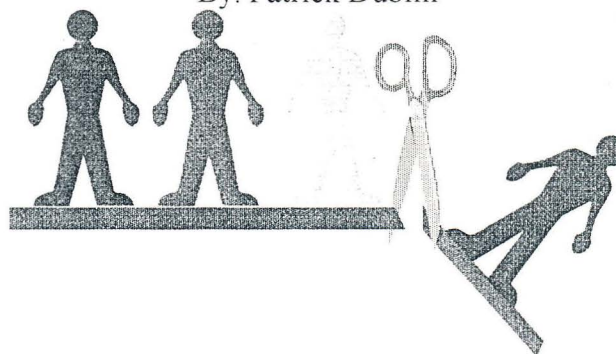

By taking politicians out of the social security business we have done them a great favor because they can now focus on what they should do: stop crime, run a good justice system, manage foreign affairs—the real duties of a government. By removing the government from social security, we have accomplished the biggest privatization in Chilean history. This has allowed us to turn over to the private sector the energy and telecommunications companies.

Private pensions are undoubtedly creating cultural changes. When workers feel that they own a fraction of a country, not through the party bosses, not through a politburo like the Russians, but through ownership of part of the financial assets of the country, they are much more attached to the free market, a free society, and democracy.

It appears to us at Colony News that this concept should possibly be studied and investigated with an open mind. If this nature of system produces the results claimed, and we don't believe Mr. Pinera is a liar (we reserve that language for Mr. Clinton), the next question is who in this country would have the balls to propose it?

America's Real Unemployment Figures

By: Patrick Dublin

Recently, the United States Labor Department released figures indicating the country's unemployment rate stood at a comparatively low 5.1%. Apparently the gullible American public has been attuned to believing these hocus-pocus statistics; even while many they know, or they themselves lack a decent job.

According to esteemed economist Lester Thurow the 5.1% unemployment rate is bogus, because, like an iceberg that is mostly invisible below the waterline, officially unemployed workers are just a small part of the total number of workers looking for more work.

If we combine the 7.5 to 8 million officially unemployed workers, the 5 to 6 million people who are not working but who do not meet any of the tests for being active in the workforce and are therefore not considered unemployed, and the 4.5 million part-time workers who would like full-time work, there are 17 to 18.5 million Americans looking for more work. This brings the real unemployment rate to almost 14%.

Slow growth has also generated an enormous contingent workforce of underemployed people. There are 8.1 million American workers in temporary jobs, 2 million who work "on call", and 8.3 million self-employed "independent contractors" (many of whom are downsized professionals who have very few clients but call themselves self-employed consultants because they are also looking for more work and better jobs.)

Together these contingent workers account for another 14% of the workforce. Many of the employed are these contingent workers have no bargaining power with employers, and payroll workers realize they must swim in the same Darwinian ocean. Like the unemployed, these contingent workers generate downward wage pressures.

In addition there are 5.8 million missing males (another 4% of the workforce) 25 to 60 years of age. They exist in our census statistics but not in our labor statistics. They have no obvious means of economic support. They are the right age to be in the workforce, were once in the workforce, are not in school, and are not old enough to have retired. They show up in neither employment nor unemployment statistics. They have either been dropped from, or have dropped out of, the normal working economy. Some we know as homeless; others have disappeared in the underground illegal economy.

Put these three groups together and in the aggregate about one-third of the American workforce is potentially looking for more work than they have now. Add in another 11 million immigrants (legal and illegal) who entered the United States from 1980 to 1993 to search for more work and higher wages, and one has a sea of unemployed workers, underemployed workers, and newcomers looking for work.

These millions of job-hunters lead to a more human-scale result that everyone can understand. We have long listened to government released unemployment figures then looked around at the number of folks unemployed and underemployed and marveled at what the American public will swallow.

UN, Environmentalist, Take Aim at US Population, Land

By: Richard Struthers

The United Nations, under the World Colony despot Butros-Butros-whatever, and in conjunction with leading world environmental leaders, have been silently launching a behind-the-scenes full scale attack on the world's population. Especially targeted, but not limited to, is the land mass of the United States.

Colony News has documented recent American land giveaway deals between Butros and Clinton, publishing the sites of annexed and planned Bio-Diversity sites within the country's borders.

While the ceding of American land to UN control is dastardly enough, more alarming is the UN lead environmentalist approach to the world's population, including America. Since Clinton's support is overwhelming among the green groups; we can only conclude he is a proponent of what is termed Sustainable Development.

The following quotes were unbelievably uttered by environmentalist at the UN held 1994 International Conference on Population and Development:

What needs to be encouraged is the further mobilization of civil society, connecting more and more people with ideas about sustainable development. It is important to focus on the thematic linkages between various conferences and to develop a holistic approach to issues of sustainability, including women's empowerment and reproductive health. There's a big agenda out there-and we need to search for strategies for better global governance.

Susan Davis-Director Women's Environmental and Development Organization

Environmental breakdown, human rights violations, runaway population growth, homelessness, poverty, joblessness and social disintegration count among these legacies. All are manifestations of seriously malfunctioning institutions. Our organization, Habitat II is poised to begin the global dialogue toward recreating human societies for a new era.

From Habitat II

Free enterprise really means rich people get richer. They have the freedom to exploit and psychologically rape their fellow human beings in the process. Capitalism is destroying the earth.

Helen Caldicott of the Union of Concerned Scientists

People are the cause of all the problems; we have too many of them; we need to get rid of some of them, and the ban on DDT is as good a way as any.

Charles Wurster, Environmental Defense Fund

We reject the idea of private property.

Peter Derle, President of the National Audubon Society

Giving society cheap, abundant energy..would be the equivalent of giving an idiot child a machine gun.

Paul Ehrlich, author of The Population Bomb

In order to stabilize world population, we must eliminate 350,000 people per day.

DR., Jacques Cousteau

Complex technology of any sort is an assault on human dignity. It would be little short of disastrous for us to discover the source of clean, cheap, abundant energy, because of what we might do with it.

Amoa Lovins, Rocky Mountain Institute

The collective needs of non-species must take precedence over the needs and desires of humans.

Dr. Reed Noss, the Wildlands Project

We must make this an insecure and inhospitable place for capitalists and their projects. We must reclaim the roads and the plowed land, halt dam construction, tear down existing farms, free shackled rivers and return to wilderness millions and tens of millions of acres of presently settled land.

David Foreman, Earth First

If I were reincarnated, I would wish to be returned to Earth as a killer virus to lower human population levels.

Prince Phillip, World Wildlife Fund

There's no denying it... some animals are dangerous to others. The most deadliest of all is an adult human being. People have destroyed as many habitats and caused the extinction of as many animals as any natural disaster ever has. Now it's up to us to save what's left of the biological diversity of our planet.

World Wildlife Federation

It's obvious the Clinton Administration is complying with the United Nations' Agenda 21 blueprint, which would redefine environmental and land use policies of the United States. Clinton has even designated a council to study the alternatives. The council, named President's Council on Sustainable Development has issued a report detailing a program for infusing UN mandated reforms in education, job training, housing, transportation and health care.

In June, the United Nations passed a resolution favoring sharp restrictions on the private ownership of property worldwide. This resolution was supported by the Clinton Administration.

The UN's Conference on Human Settlement recently met in Vancouver, BC, and suggested that all land be managed as a public resource rather than a profit-generating commodity. It called for a socialistic redistribution of land in poor countries and for a more equitable distribution of wealth.

The conference also said: Private land ownership also is a principal instrument of accumulation and concentration of wealth and therefore contributes to social injustice; if unchecked it may become a major obstacle in the planning and implementation of development schemes.

The US-UN delegation endorsed all of the resolutions. The Clinton Administration US delegation said the land-management proposals were not inconsistent with established national practices in the United States.

At the same time Clinton is ceding land to the UN, he is involved in a major policy disagreement within his own cabinet and with environmentalist nationwide. The dispute centers on his administration giving thousands of acres of land in Southwest Texas to the Nation of Germany for establishment of another foreign air-force base. The land is located adjacent to Fort Bliss and would include previously allocated grazing and public park acres. Maybe Clinton's ceding of land for foreign military usage will finally be halted by of all things - environmentalist within his own house.

DC Bill Of Rights Rally Turnout Disappointing

By: Ken Bliss

Special contributing correspondent
to Colony News

I must admit I was seriously disappointed by the entire Liberty Rally. I had gone with high hopes for an improvement over the last two years but, unfortunately, such was not to be the case.

Saturday was largely a wash, due at least in part to the number of folks who stayed home waiting to see which way the hurricane was going. Best estimate of attendance at any one time on Saturday would be about 500 people including a couple of undercover cops, various recon elements from left wing organizations (ladies, the skirt and sandals were a dead give away even if you hadn't obviously been memorizing signs and faces - the fact that your friend was making recon sketches didn't do much for your cover, either), a couple of Taiwanese intelligence types who seemed genuinely puzzled by the entire situation (their Japanese counterparts showed up Sunday, with a similar reaction) and two c.i. recruiters who had a rather frustrating day trying to start something and discovering nobody was really interested in listening to them.

I heard NO libertarian speakers at all on Saturday, and, again unfortunately, Linda Thompson and company were about average for the entire afternoon. Gordon Liddy canceled, after failed negotiations with the rally organizers (he refused to appear in the same venue as LT and the various other alternative conspiracy addicts), so the only positive Rally note from my perspective was that I enjoy Carl Klang's music, and this is the first opportunity I've gotten to hear him perform live.

I left for the evening hoping against hope that the organizers had simply filtered all of the conspiracy wackos back to Saturday, in order to clear the venue for more mainstream speakers on Sunday.

Unfortunately Sunday proved my optimism to be entirely unwarranted. Yes, there were a few folks like J.J. Johnson, and State Senator Duke who did get to speak, but they were a distinct minority. The majority of the speakers Sunday once again fell into the everything in the known universe is a conspiracy category.

Attendance was up (about 1200-1500 or thereabouts) as was surveillance (a LARGE unmarked motor home parked at an angle that gave good visibility of both the crowd and the backstage area). A highlight of the entire afternoon was actually having some of the East Coast folks show up with their unit standards and simply show the flag.

The militia folks from these units provided a calm, positive presence which directly contrasted with the frantic nonsense of some of the conspiracy-types who seemed to be doing their level best to offend everyone external to their own group.

Recon on the way Sunday had revealed a much stronger police presence, including backup units stationed about 5 blocks away on C Street. We wondered about this, as well as about the increased media presence, which seemed as intent on finding background footage as interviewing... in other words it looked like they were waiting for something to happen.

Along about 2 PM, something did. It seems that person or persons unknown had paid for a radical Pan-African to fly up to the rally with an indication that they would be scheduled to speak.

Missing From Rally

Where was Libertarian?

This had been done without the knowledge of the organizing committee who, unfortunately, freaked when the Pan-Africans showed up. Despite several attempts at negotiation, both the committee and the Pan-Africans immediately developed defensive attitudes which effectively blocked constructive resolution of the issue.

A BIG note of thanks to our own Bob Ireland for attempting first to keep the dialog going in a rational direction, and failing that, to embarrass the committee into allowing the Pan-Africans to speak on First Amendment grounds. While his efforts ultimately proved futile, he did elicit both the information concerning the origins of the group and their travel to DC, as well as the very obvious lack of interest on the part of the committee in even a cursory appearance of equal respect for the rights of those not in their immediate constituency. All in all, it was not a good day to be a libertarian at the rally.

Some of the participants displayed signs and stickers stating Love your country, fear your Government, and Slaves R us, New World Order.

Regarding the confrontation with the black activists State Senator Charles Duke was telling Terry Sanders of C.A.L.L. (the Rally organizing group) that if those guys got on stage, he was leaving.

Speaker Ted Gunderson, a former FBI agent, told the crowd the bombing of the Murrah building in Oklahoma City was an incident that was created by an evil element within our government to hasten the passage of anti-terrorism legislation. Gunderson predicted riots and disorder that will be the excuse to bring in the troops, declare martial law, take over the airports, transportation and the food supply.

Attendees included Charles Collins, Charles Duke, J.J. Johnson, Leroy Crenshaw, Aaron Russo, Carolyn Trochman, Eugene Schroder, Henry Lamb, Kathy Gettis, Drew Foster, Howard Phillips, Jack McLamb, and Eustace Mullins among others.

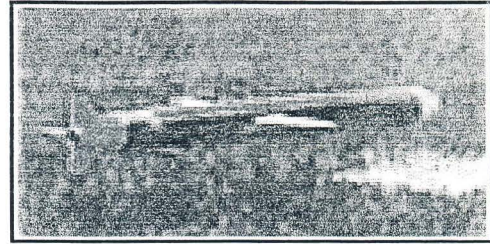

Entertainment was scattered, as the advertised appearance by the Steve Miller Band never materialized. A representative from the group said they were never asked or notified of any appearance scheduled for DC on that weekend.

Also contributing to this article was Arlin Adams of Militia Net, and Robert Ireland.

Colony News thanks these gentleman for this somewhat controversial outlook on the DC Rally. Once again we remind patriots; it's about freedom of the press and the First Amendment.

Your Money Wasted On Foreign Affairs

By: Patrick Dublin

The 1.4 million $ Cruise Missile

While the Clinton White House was imploring the American public into believing his latest campaign promise to find funds for increased education costs... he was at the same time busy signing-off on his advisors requests for Cruise missile strikes, at a cost of 1.4 million dollars apiece, into Iraq. The total estimated cost for the election year bravado, not including manpower deployment etc., was 34 million dollars. This was just the two day total for the 27 missiles launched. An additional 770 million dollars a day is being spent to maintain America's vigil over Sadamm alone.

The United States defense budget for this year is 240 billion dollars. 240 BILLION dollars, that is! For defense against whom? We've asked this question before.

Were the Somali's going to launch a 4,000 mile canoe assault on the US? Were the supposed tyrants of Haiti about to amass an armada of gun-rafts and assault our beaches? Are the Bosnians going to unleash their mighty air force upon New York? For that matter, did anyone really believe the Viet Cong were about to invade the US via their Navy of sampans?

What did we accomplish invading Panama? We replaced one drug-running despot with another. And don't forget about our 34 year long fight with Fidel. We wouldn't even have to concern ourselves with terroristic threats from the Middle-East if we would forego our misguided allegiance to Israel and stop alienating one billion Arabs.

Projecting power in the Persian Gulf

Consider what 140 billion dollars of the current defense budget would accomplish if the money was directed to programs and projects here in the US. Notice we did not espouse the usual 'use the funds for the budget deficit'. That's because we simply don't believe in the phony budget deficit; as it recognizes a debt owed to the Federal Reserve; which we do not recognize as a valid entity.

America could easily do with a defense budget of 100 billion dollars yearly. Of course we could no longer afford to deploy our young men and women to hazardous locations for the purpose of appeasing our ego and the United Nations. Just think, we as a country would actually, because of financial considerations, have to get along with the rest of the world in a peaceful, cooperative manner. What a novel idea.

There would be drawbacks to this idea though; America would have to first tell the war-mongering mini-state of Israel to take a hike.

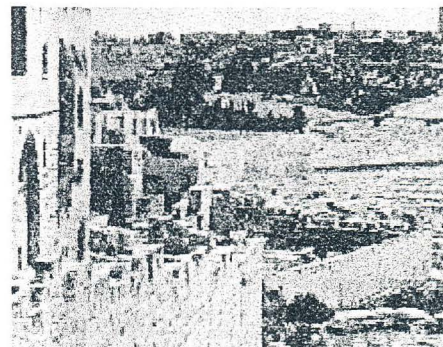

America has wasted literally Trillions of dollars the past 30 years alone on foreign adventures and defense budgets. Picture how trillions of dollars could have impacted the quality of life in the US.

Although reduced, this country still provides officially 11 billion dollars a year for foreign aid; most of which is given to Israel and Egypt.

Ike warned us about the military-industrial complex and it's future ramifications

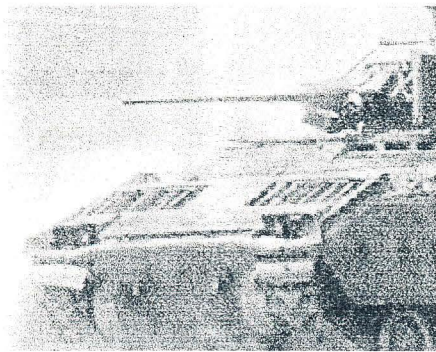

Since the brunt of any recent military activity mostly consists of cruise missile or Air Force strikes, there should be no reason to deploy our armed forces to foreign lands. We can discover no rational reason for American men and women to be concerned about affairs in foreign lands at all. Our security dictates this country respond to a threatening situation when our national interest is at stake. Name one incidence of national interest since World War II.

Jerusalem. The American money pit.

Pat Buchanan's America First policy is correct. Countless American soldiers have perished due to foreign excursions without any national interest at stake. So what if China takes over Taiwan. And Iraq cedes Kuwait.

Who cares which war-lord controls Somalia. Why should we bother with who is fighting in Angola. If the North Koreans want South Korea, let them have it. It will just mean our made-in-South Korea goods flooding the market will say made-in-North Korea. As for the Japanese, why should America protect them? All they ever did for this country was attack it militarily in the past; and financially in the present. The Japs remain a sneaky culture of fanatical world-control pretenders. Our only regret should be we didn't drop a hundred atomic bombs on there slanted asses.

Defending the Totalitarian Kuwaiti regime

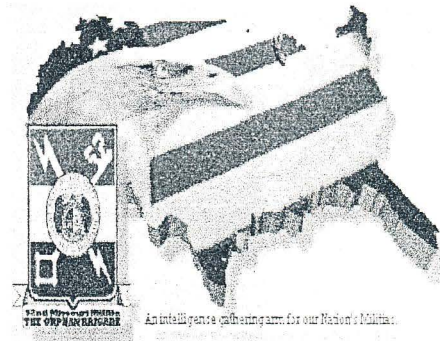

Not one of the Presidential Candidates involved in this years election mentions slicing the defense budget in half. What happened to the so called peace dividend?

America maintains it's costly defense budget for the sole purpose of implementing orders received and in conjunction with the United Nations. Conflicts in Bosnia, Haiti, North Korea, Somalia, Vietnam were all conducted with the implicit cooperation of the UN. And the United States shouldered the majority of costs associated with each adventure.

Unspoken as it is, the real reason for maintaining the absurd 240 billion dollar yearly defense budget is propagation of The New World Colony. Our troops are now trained and utilized for civil population control on a world wide basis. Spend the money at home.

Anti-Militia Bills Flooding The House

By: Richard Struthers

Seizing upon recent disasters as the Olympic bombing and the explosion of TWA flight 800, several Democratic House members have introduced a flurry of bills designed to curb constitutional patriotic militia activity nationwide.

Ms. Jackson-Lee of Texas has introduced House Resolution # 206 which reads as follows:

Expressing the sense of Congress with respect to the threat to the security of American citizens and the United States Government posed by armed militia and paramilitary groups and organization.

>Whereas the Government of the United States and its agencies are democratic institutions, created by and for the people of the United States

>Whereas the various agencies of the United States Government derive their purpose and their character from the expressed will of the American people, and may be altered from time to time by peaceful means;

>Whereas 169 American men, women and children were killed in the terrorist bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in April 1995;

>Whereas Federal law enforcement officials were threatened and held at bay for 81 days in a Montana town by a group of so-called Freemen while trying to exercise their duty to uphold the law, at a cost of millions of dollars to American taxpayers;

➤ Whereas various spokespersons for self-described militia and paramilitary organization and groups have repeatedly denounced the legitimacy of the United States Government;

>Whereas several members of an Arizona militia group were recently arrested in possession of heavy armaments, deadly bombs and explosive devices, and charged with conspiring to use explosives to destroy buildings housing Federal agents;

>Whereas experts have estimated that extremist anti-Government militia groups and organizations in the United States may number as many as 800, existing in more than 40 States;

>Whereas the democratic institutions of the United States and the American people are protected from both foreign and domestic enemies by a well trained military and multiple layers of legitimate State and local police organizations, and

>Whereas the actions of some militias and paramilitary groups and organizations specifically promoting violence constitute a grave danger to American citizens and the institutions of American democracy, and threaten the very foundation of freedom and democracy in America

NOW THEREFORE, be it Resolved by the House of Representatives, The Senate That it is the sense of Congress that

- 1) armed conspiracies against the government of the United States or any of its agencies and personnel should be aggressively identified, dissolved and their perpetrators brought to justice by the federal authorities of law enforcement with the greatest dispatch possible;
- 2) the illegal possession of firearms, explosives, or any substance or devices of destruction by any individual or group should be prosecuted to the full extent of all applicable laws by the Department of Justice, and
- 3) those legally possessing firearms, explosives or any substance or device of destruction and involved in any conspiracy to harm or destroy any agency or property of the United States government, or any official of the United States Government, or any person, should be promptly prosecuted to the full extent of all applicable laws by the Department of Justice, including those designed to protect the United States Government against treason and subversion

Senate Bill No. 1097 has been introduced by Senator Berryman

It reads as follows:

Sec. 40: A person shall not drill or parade with a firearm, regardless of whether the firearm is loaded or functioning, on property owned or leased by the state or a local unit of government. Unless you happen to be a member of a politically approved organization.

Sec. 4028: An individual shall not be an active member of a paramilitary organization.

- A person shall not provide instruction or training in warfare, sabotage, terrorism, counter-intelligence, or similar areas to an individual intending the individual to unlawfully cause physical injury to any person or unlawfully damage any person's property or knowing or having reason to know that the individual intends to unlawfully cause physical injury to any person or unlawfully damage any person's property.
- A person who violates the subsections is guilty of a felony punishable by imprisonment for not more than 4 years or a fine of not more than $2,000.00, or both.

Definition of approved organizations

- (A) Active member of a paramilitary organization means an individual who is a member of a paramilitary organization and who commits one or more acts intending to further the unlawful activities of that organization.
- (B) Paramilitary Organization means an association of 3 or more persons that is organized in whole or in part to do one or more of the following unlawful activities:
 - (1) Engage in or conspire to engage in instruction or training in warfare, sabotage, terrorism, counterintelligence, or similar areas to unlawfully cause physical injury to any person or unlawfully damage any person's property.
 - (2) Violate a penal law of the United States, this state or another state, or a political subdivision of this state or another state to further or to fund the goals or purposes of the organization, including but not limited to any legitimate or unlawful goals or purposes.

Gun Ownership Assault Continues

By: Marge Zinther

If you own this collection-hide it now!

The Second Amendment guarantees every American citizen the right to bear arms. It's well understood this stipulation was embedded into our Constitution by the Founding Fathers in order to prevent future tyrannical governmental regimes domestically such as they were exposed to.

Over two hundred twenty years later, the people's representatives, our congressmen and women, routinely display absolute ignorance pertaining to the provisions of the Second Amendment.

In 1993 alone, the following members of congress introduced these bills onto the House and Senate floor. All are blatantly unconstitutional:

- S-109, Hoyt (D-NY), would require a record of every round of ammunition
- S-178, Hoyt (D-NY), would prohibit the manufacture, sale or importation of .25 caliber, .32 caliber and 9mm ammunition
- S-376, Lautenberg (D-NJ) and HR-544, Torricelli (D-NJ), would prohibit purchase of two or more handguns in any 30 day period
- S-892, Chaffee (R-RI), would ban all handguns

- HR-711, Gonzalez (D-TX), requires that handguns be available only to persons who demonstrate, to the government's satisfaction, that they possess knowledge and skill in their safe use, maintenance and storage
- HR-1501, Yates (D-IL), would ban handguns
- HR-1616, Collins (D-IL), requires the mandatory registration of handguns
- HR-1734, Gutierrez (D-IL), prohibits possession or transfer of all handguns
- HR-1833, Owens (D-NY), bans handguns, handgun ammunition

Bills and sponsors of Bills that would ban Semi-Automatic Handguns, Rifles and Shotguns

S-108, Moynihan / S-639, DeConcini / S-653, Metzenbaum / S-1607, Biden / HR-893, Gutierrez / HR-1421, Stark / HR-1472, Schumer / HR-1568, Gibbons / HR-1571, Hughes / HR-1706, Mfume / HR-3184, Reynolds

Incredibly, despite 2nd Amendment guarantees, the above peoples' representatives proposed the above anti-right to bear arms bills in one year itself.

Because our elected officials, along with an all too willing American public obviously have no inclination to read, much less understand our Founding Father's intentions on the right to bear arms; we thought we would print them a few reminders:

U.S. Constitution, Amendment II

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed

Samuel Adams

The Constitution shall never be construed to authorize Congress to infringe the just liberty of the press or the rights of conscience; or to prevent the people of the United States who are peaceable citizens from keeping their own arms

We the People of the United States
do hereby establish this Constitution and give to the People of the United States the right to keep and bear arms
Article
Section 1. All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.
Section 2. The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.
Section 3. Representatives and Electors shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.
Section 4. The Electors shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.
Section 5. The Electors shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

John Adams

Arms in the hands of citizens may be used at individual discretion... in private self-defense

Tench Coxe

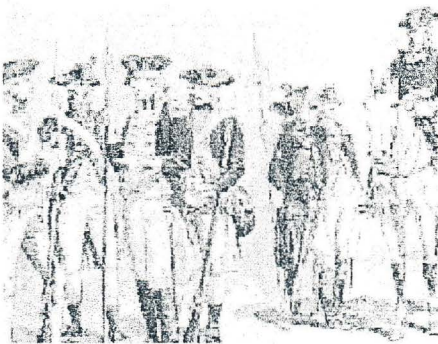

As civil rulers, not having their duty to the people duly before them, may attempt to tyrannize, and as the military forces which must be occasionally raised to defend our country, might pervert their power to the injury of their fellow citizens, the people are confirmed by the article in their right to keep and bear arms

Colt 45

John DeWitt

It is asserted by most respectable writers upon our government, that a well-regulated militia, composed of the yeomanry of the country, have ever been considered as the bulwark of a free people. Tyrants have never placed any confidence on a militia composed freemen.

The First Militia

Elbridge Gerry

What Sir, is the use of a militia? It is to prevent the establishment of a standing army, the bane of liberty... Whenever Governments mean to invade the rights and liberties of the people, they always attempt to destroy the militia, in order to raise an army upon their ruins.

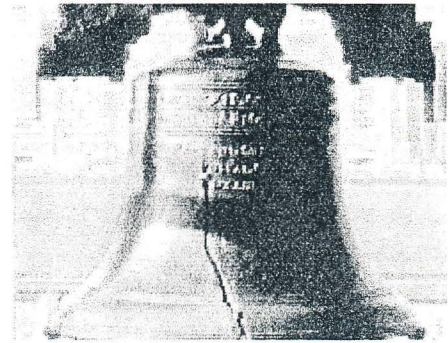

Alexander Hamilton

The best we can hope for concerning the people at large is that they be properly armed.

Patrick Henry

The great object is that every man be armed. Everyone who is able may have a gun.

Have we no means of resisting disciplined armies, when our only defense, the militia, is put in the hands of Congress? Of what service would the militia be to you when, most probably, you will not have a single musket in the state? For, as arms are to be provided by Congress, they may or may not provide them.

Liberty being taken away

Thomas Jefferson

No freeman shall ever be debarred the use of arms.

And what country can preserve its liberties, if its rulers are not warned from time to time that this people preserve the sprit of resistance? Let them take arms... The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time, with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure.

Zachariah Johnson

The people are not to be disarmed of their weapons. They are left in full possession of them.

Richard Henry Lee

A Militia, when properly formed, are in fact the people themselves... and include all men capable of bearing arms.

George Washington

Firearms stand next in importance to the Constitution itself. They are the American people's liberty teeth and keystone under independence... From the hour the Pilgrims landed to the present day, events, occurrences, and tendencies prove that to ensure peace, security, and happiness, the rifle and pistol are equally indispensable... The very atmosphere of firearms everywhere restrains evil interference—they deserve a place of honor with all that's good.

Utah Freeman's Fight For Self Rule

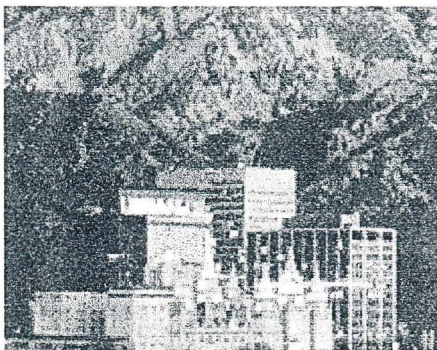

By: George Novak

Editor's Note: We are pleased to announce the addition of Mr. Novak as Colony News Staff Correspondent.

While most media attention the past year has been focused on the Montana Freeman, overlooked has been the growing proliferation of Freemen-styled groups throughout other parts of the country; especially the West.

One such long-standing commune has been the Immanuel Foundation and Fraternity of Preparation, located amidst the desert about forty miles west of the town of Milford, Utah.

The foundation is built around 640 acres, where they raise their own beef, fish and vegetables, and includes a library, chapel and community hall.

The Mormon Chapel, Utah

The members of the Foundations won't use credit cards or cash within the community, considering those the devilish tools of the Babylon they left behind. They are guided by the government and common law court system they created at God's direction.

Similar to the Montana Freeman, the self-described Utah Freeman have ignored Beaver County property-tax notices, believing God will rescue them from the gathering legal storm to oust them forcibly from the place called Vance Springs.

Although the group is not considered particularly militant, founder William Talmage Weis says, If they come to evict us, we won't walk away. Our battle is over religious liberty. In Montana, the Freeman got a government loan to buy a ranch and then couldn't pay it back, so they try to say the government is fraudulent. We're simply asking, can the government pass a law regulating God and his people?

In this case, the Utah Freeman simply refused to pay property taxes on land, and a ranch they already owned. The land in question, located near the foot of Sawtooth Peak, has been sold by the County in lieu of back taxes in 1993. The buyer, a Nevada company, has yet to gain access to the property, as the Foundation has kept those who would enforce foreclosure at bay for years.

Now a district court has issued a writ of restitution against the Freeman. This order would direct the Beaver County sheriff to physically remove the members; considered trespassers by the court, from the property.

Although none of the group members are licensed attorneys, they have filed an avalanche of lawsuits and legal briefs in state and federal courts, alleging civil-rights violations, perjury and conspiracy among judges, county commissioners, county auditors and attorneys.

This smorgasbord of home-cooked litigation has frustrated attorneys. In court, group members have repeatedly stressed they don't want another Waco.

Visitors to the commune report not even seeing as much as a hunting rifle on the site. After an aerial photo showed what appeared to be an ammunition bunker or bomb shelter, local law-enforcement officers and an agent for the BATF visited the ranch in 1987 and learned the bunker actually was a root cellar filled with seed potatoes and canned goods.

There's never been a cause of action against us, Weis says. We've never been charged with the commission of any crime.

The group maintains a friendly relationship with the Beaver County Sheriff's Department, although it feuded briefly with the Bureau of Land Management after fencing off a public road that ran through the property.

The group's charter states that any attack upon this foundation shall be deemed to be an attack against God. Foundation Founder Weis explains. The Lord made it clear. He said. I'll fight your battles for you. They will have to arrest us.

Foundations of the group's beliefs are contained in a 128-page Study Guide Weis published, titled Come Out Of Babylon. It's full of references from the Bible, Magna Carta, state and U.S. Constitution, Declaration of Independence, IRS Code, Book of Mormon and the writings of Mormon Church founder Joseph Smith.

To create a place to prepare for acceptance into the Kingdom of God, members filed a Charter with Beaver County in 1986, declaring that residents of the land have pledge their life, their fortunes, their property and everything they have or ever hope to have to God through the Immanuel Foundation and Fraternity of Preparation.

The group's communal system is patterned after the United Order communities that Mormon pioneer Brigham Young experimented with during the early years of Utah's settlement by Whites. All funds and property are contributed to the common good and managed by elected Stewards.

County officials urged the group in 1988 to apply to the state for tax-exempt status as a religious organization, but Weis refused.

The standoff may soon come to a conclusion though, as the land has been legally sold and armed resistance appearing minimal at best.

From The Roundtable

FEMA Control

We all know that an agency such as the monolith FEMA maintains underground command and communications posts. What all patriots should know now is that the U.S. Navy has underground listening posts around the nation.

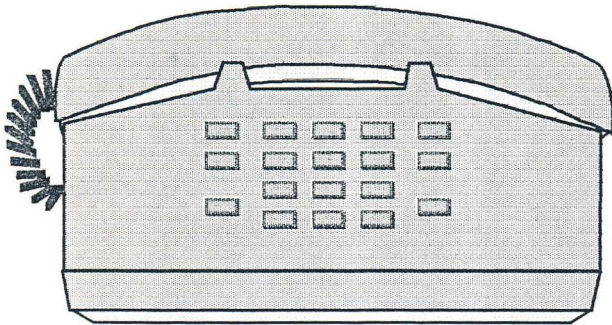

One Navy run electronic facility is located near Sugar Grove, West Virginia, on the W. Virginia-Virginia state line. This multi-level underground secret base is used to monitor domestic telephone traffic. Working hand in hand with the National Security Agency, the Navy monitors microwave communications.

All patriots be aware that 1-800 numbers in North America are randomly monitored by the National Security Agency. When certain pre-determined code words are spoken during a 1-800 call, the NSA computers automatically trace and record that call.

We feel that all Americans should know that the NSA has done an "end round" to eavesdrop on your routine phone calls on a full time basis.

In England at Cheltenham, there is the listening center of British Intelligence. This installation is commonly known to be the headquarters of Government Communications Headquarters. The NSA maintains their own people there to do the spying on British domestic communications. That way the British government can, with tongue in cheek, claim that they do not actually spy on their own.

This con is a two way street. The Brits maintain a corps of their spies at NSA to do the actual monitoring of our telephone calls. This way the NSA can make the same claim.

It has come to the attention of the Roundtable that FEMA and the Pentagon jointly maintain at least 50 secret underground command centers around the country.

It has been perceived that FEMA is a civilian organization. The reality is that the Pentagon and FEMA have been working hand-in-hand from the beginning.

We patriots must ask ourselves what is going on here? Why would a civilian agency be melded with the military? Why would they need armed guards? Why does FEMA have a shadow government already in place at their secret command centers?

The shadow administrators of FEMA hold cabinet rank, and are addressed as such while in residence at these quasi-military bunkers. It's time to ask your elected officials for some straight answers. But don't hold your collective breath. The parasites in Washington appear only to want to steal your wealth and control your destiny.

Patriots should be made aware of the long-standing marriage between the Fortune 500 companies and big government. AT&T has a number of sophisticated underground centers, Northrup, Lockheed, and McDonnell Douglas have constructed hi-tech underground command posts around the country.

Now that the German Air-Force has been given a land grant in the American Southwest, you can be sure that they will be constructing their own bunkers and or underground detention centers for unruly dissidents of the New World Colony.

Conspiracy in England

Insider manipulation has again come to light in the International forum. After British policewomen, Yvonne Fletcher, was shot and killed outside the Libyan Embassy in London in 1984, Britain severed diplomatic relations with that nation.

The British Government and the Zionist controlled media insisted that the shots had come from the Arab Embassy. But, now a documentary shown on British Channel 4 said there was evidence that American Intelligence operatives were behind the murder. The plan being; to force Britain to follow America in it's campaign against Libya. The documentary aired on British television on April 10.

The visit last month to England by "Red" Nelson Mandela, turned out to be an exercise in ass-kissing by the ruling elite. Mandela was given the red carpet treatment that not all legitimate national leaders are accorded.

"Red" Nelson addressed both Houses of Parliament, followed by lunch at the Dorchester Hotel, given by the Queen and her long time insider husband, the Duke of Edinburgh.

As for the Zionist controlled media, they went nuts. The media was nauseating in it's blatant here worship of the communist terrorist. By the time that this slime was on his way back to South Africa, he had secured a 60 million pound aid package from the Zionist controlled British Government. No doubt to put a sizable portion into his own pockets and that of his terrorists pals. The rest to throw down a socialist rathole.

Forfeiture Laws Against Juris System

By: George Novak

Forfeiture is a two-sided coin. On one side it is government taking from a crook his cash, car or condo because they are the fruit of his crime and he has lost his rights to own them.

On the other side we see the cases of innocent owners losing cars, homes and businesses to police agencies after raids.

Forfeiture actions which net millions of dollars for police agencies from thousands of people never charged with a crime and washing over the nation's property owners like a tidal wave.

That increasing roar of police action reflects a similar tidal wave in the legal realm in which federal or 'maritime' jurisdiction sloshes over into common law jurisdiction.

Common law or natural law jurisdiction, long dominant in the 50 states, is the one presumed by our original Constitution to be the dominant law realm of the land in which the people live and relate.

Common law suffered its major defeat in the War Between the States in the 1860's.

War was waged against the states under Washington's martial law power. The District of Columbia was originally set up in maritime jurisdiction, allowing federal power to operate outside the continental United States.

The war helped replace the civilized common law-oriented Constitution with a militant international law sphere. The pervasive claims of people working in this sphere of law allows for forfeiture against innocent owners who have no remedy except costly lawsuits.

In the old days, forfeiture was legitimate only if the seized property came from crime. Now, property may be seized at whim.

Is there any way we can rid ourselves of the plague by eliminating the necessity which despots claim?

First, two unlike options. The president can issue an executive order overturning the layers of martial law established under Reagan/Bush/Clinton and their predecessors. Or a foreign power could work to re-establish 'civil' government.

A possible third option would be for the people to establish what are called 'jural societies.' Such a society is formed when a group of like-minded people agree to form a governing body and adhere to its rule. Our national and state constitutions envision a process in which a sovereign citizenry forms a governing body or 'jural society' starting at the local level.

We have failed to keep the republic and live in a military-maritime jurisdiction as normal.

Clinton's War That Never Took Place - Drugs

By: Richard Struthers

Drug Czar - McCaffrey

Six weeks before the Presidential election, the Chief Drug-Lord of the nation, William - put some more in my nose - Clinton, (Say, this here Coke IS the real thing, heh, heh) paraded out the official White House drug team to allay public fears the war on drugs is a joke.

Barry McCaffrey, national drug control policy director, told Congress We need your help. McCaffrey plays the part of the ultimate pawn; a former military officer being used to project credence within drug-policy, and military relations circles. McCaffrey is in the inevitable position of enacting drug-control within the confines of a White House that practices drug-usage.

Make no mistake about it, this is the most drug-ridden, corrupt gang of thugs, junkies and thieves to ever occupy the White House.

Heroin usage, for decades on the decline, has risen sharply the past three years, with supply shifting from the Near East to Colombia. Nearly 62% of America's heroin traffic now originates from the Cocaine dealing South American Country. As recently as 1989, 96% of heroin came from Asia.

The Clinton administration's cavalier attitude, and generally recognized acceptance and usage of drugs by teenagers is directly responsible for the past four year explosion in teen drug habits.

Shalala says more money will fix crises

Donna Shalala, Secretary of Health and Human Services, told Senator Hatch's Judiciary Committee, we must not allow drugs to become a political football, that could send the wrong message to kids.

Send the wrong message to kids! What the hell message does this dwarf think her office is sending! Teenagers are sniffing cocaine, injecting heroin, smoking crack and marijuana at the highest level since the 1970's. Shalala's answer to this crises was to ask for a supplemental $250 million dollars more on top of the $10 billion dollars already budgeted for drug enforcement.

Senator Mitch McConnell, said more teens are smoking marijuana than cigarettes. Yet the Clinton administration continues to hide the teenage drug problem by focusing on teenage cigarette smoking. Hell, any teenager can tell you it's easier to now obtain illegal drugs than cigarettes. What kind of policy is it that replaces cigarettes with drugs among our nation youth?

There are secondary repercussions also; as explained by Economics Professors Bruce Benson and David Rasmussen of Florida State University.

According to the professors, who authored a 60-page report on Illicit Drugs and Crime, one consequence of shifting resources to the drug war is that violent and property criminals are not caught until they have committed a relatively large number of crimes, if caught at all.

Benson and Rasmussen further explain that as jails and prisons clog up with non-violent drug offenders, those violent felons can be forced out of prison relatively early; freeing them to commit more crimes.

United States Customs Service

Stopping Drugs or Supplying Them?

The Florida researcher's also said the theory that drugs cause crime analysis fails utterly. Most drug users who also commit crimes against persons or property reported in interviews that they turned to crime before they started using drugs, not the other way around. In fact, it was the higher disposal income and unsavory new connections produced by a life of crime that made it possible for them to but drugs. Crime leads to drugs, not vice versa.

Because the diversion of resources into the failed drug war led to a reduced probability of arrest for robbery or burglary, the property crime rate has risen 16%.

Violent crime also increased markedly, as dealers displaced from neighborhoods where they had been content invaded the turf of established dealers, and residents of previously untapped markets fell prey to violent criminals.

In addition to these law enforcement problems, the drug war has even uglier unintended consequences. Drug entrepreneurs who run into trouble at the border develop domestic sources of production. It is now estimated that marijuana is the largest cash crop in California.

As the government started looking for domestic marijuana via aerial infrared reconnaissance, California growers moved indoors, switching to more potent strains which can produce a $75 million profit out of a $1 million investment within a single year.

When the interdiction started to have some success in California, some growing shifted to the mountains of Kentucky, involving people whose cultural roots included moonshining and a history of violence, making the trade rougher than it had been before.

Roger says he has nose like vacuum cleaner

While the Clinton Drug House continues it's assault on tobacco, Benson and Rasmussen make the point that if tobacco is outlawed - as Hillary obviously plans - how long will it be before we have Shag Houses in our inner-city neighborhoods, before smugglers tired of being undone by tobacco-sniffing dogs come up with a purified white buffered nicotine, suitable for snorting or injection?

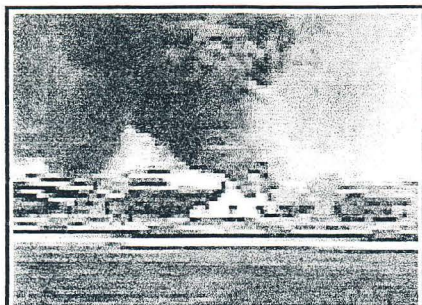

The pathologies of the drug culture are caused not by drugs, but by drug prohibition.

Is it no wonder Clinton won't diverge his health records? It can be reasonably assumed any blood test results would indicate the presence of cocaine, marijuana, and who knows what else.

There are implications that the 60ish free-drug cultural White House staff makes more than pizza runs for it's chief occupant. Not only is it plausible Clinton is a drug user, but, because of his tolerance for the illegal substances; his administration has abdicated its Constitutional Oath to protect our borders and provide a safe environment for our citizens.

Clinton Escapes Another Aircraft Crash

By: Marge Zinther

Presidential Helicopter crashes on takeoff

First, it was a Presidential backup C-130 cargo plane, now it's the Presidential backup helicopter that has been destroyed shortly upon takeoff.

In fact, the Presidential air transport system is becoming so dangerous, Clinton announced a national air safety day; grounding all official air transport for 24 hours in order for full safety inspections to be implemented.

Coming after the plane crash killing Ron Brown and his entourage over Croatia; two aircraft crashes within two months, both involving the President's fleet, have lead to much conjecture and suspicion within the administration's staff.

Already hateful and mistrusting of the military, Clinton's staff is privately worried the crashes are becoming too numerous to be coincidental. We at Colony News agree with that theory; except we're not sure whether Clinton could possibly be the target, or Clinton is targeting Secret Service agents aboard the backup transports. After all, Clinton himself was not aboard any of the transports involved; and everyone knows the dangers to life and limb being close to Clinton can present. Maybe that's why all the train travel recently.

Straight From Gadsden

By: Mike Kemp
Gadsden Minute Men

Editors Note: Colony News is pleased to present a New monthly feature: Straight From Gadsden by Gadsden Minute Men co-founder Mike Kemp.

In a recent speech, Clinton repeatedly made fun of the militias and patriots saying How dare you call yourselves patriots and heroes. In another statement he said, you compare yourself to colonial militias... you are wrong.

Where was Clinton when they taught US History? Oh, that's right, he was in Oxford, England and Moscow, Russia, while the conspirators were killing 58,000 American soldiers in Vietnam. Clinton wasn't merely protesting the war like many concerned Americans were doing. He was promoting Communism and world government, just as he is today. There is a big difference.

Clinton today is not standing for the Constitution and citizen's rights like our founding fathers did; he is trying to take those rights away.

There is a big difference between President Clinton and President Jefferson. Jefferson did not have a powerful liberal media at his disposal. If Clinton doesn't like patriot groups that do not agree with his socialist agenda, all he has to do is call a press conference and label American patriots as terrorists and hate groups. The media enthusiastically reports those lies without rebuttal.

If Clinton doesn't like the comparison between the minutemen of 1776 and the citizen militias of today, all he has to do is rewrite history with his own socialist interpretation. It could be called Clinton's History of the American Revolution, 101.

If Clinton wants to turn everything around, lets make all his buddies the good guys and see how it would appear in the history books:

Patrick Henry: According to Clinton's History 101, Patrick did not say give me liberty or give me death. He actually said, Give me a one-world government and food stamps, or I will give death to those who want liberty.

Paul Revere: Paul did not jump on his horse to warn patriots about the British invasion. According to Clinton History 101 Paul Reveres said, the Christian militias are coming! The Christian militias are coming! Call the Russians for help! We need to purge America for the One-world government!

John Paul Jones: He really did not say, Don't give up the ship, I have not yet begun to fight. According to Clinton History 101 John actually said Don't fight for liberty! Give up the ship, the Constitution and all your freedoms because we have now begun to live in the New World Order.

Thomas Jefferson: Thomas really did not say that the second Amendment was to protect us from tyranny. According to Clinton History 101, what he really said was, The second Amendment was created to arm soldiers to protect tyrant governments.

According to Clinton History 101, the IRS, ATF, and FBI are the real heroes and those farmers, blacksmiths and fishermen were nothing more than hateful terrorists that should not have the right to talk about such things as liberty and citizen's rights.

Yes, according to Clinton History 101 the socialist federal government won the revolution against those evil Christian patriots. Now we have democracy and everyone is happy and holding hands with the dedicated communists - who just happen to also want a one-world government!

How convenient. People might ask themselves if those socialist planners are actually smart enough to merge democracy with communism.

Are They? Yes, they are that devious. That is exactly what is happening in America today. Clinton has been exposed for what he is, and that is why he is verbally attacking true patriots with hate filled rhetoric and false accusations.

The truth is, the American patriot has not changed. American patriots are not terrorists, and are not aggressively changing the American system.

Our founding fathers put in writing what liberty and freedom are all about. We have the documents, we are not trying to amend or replace them. It is the conspirators for a one-world government that are aggressively dismantling our present system and trying to force us into one-world government. The politicians who are members of CFR and the Trilateral Commission are the ones who are offensively attacking our American culture. American patriots are standing for the Constitution.

To accomplish their agenda of takeover, the conspirators will utilize any government agency or branch of the military that is brainwashed enough to follow un-constitutional orders. They will continue to create fear in the nation and make true patriots look like the enemy.

But, no matter how many disasters are exploited and blamed on the militias, the patriots will continue to stand. Patriots will not surrender this nation or the Bill of Rights to another government.

Our founding fathers gave us a nation dedicated to freedom and we will not abandon our responsibilities as defenders of liberty. There will never be a valid reason to give up our private firearms.

We have it in writing in the Constitution, and we are standing for what is right. As our first Commander-in-Chief, George Washington did, we appeal to Heaven for our defense.

Feral Terror?

For those who are going to depend on JJ Johnson for trial updates (Bob Starr trial), you need to forward me your address so that I can do updating. I am knee-deep in alligators myself, and might well be in prison myself before Starr goes to trial.

Ladies and gentlemen, these are indeed the times that try our souls. Let us not be summer soldiers and sunshine patriots in the cold and turbulent weather coming our way.

Kemp's Hemp, the Macon Three and the canning of Nancy Lord are the beginnings of feral federal terror. Pray that God's will included a happy conclusion for those accused and the others in Arizona and Washington State. In Liberty, Mike Kemp.

Sorry we could only list forty reasons. It would almost be comical if it were not for the fact our country is declining into a moral morass. Now you know why the Democrats logo is an jackass.

What To Expect If Clinton Is Re-Elected

By: Michael Devlin

King Bill I and Merlin of The World Colony

With the U.S. Presidential elections just weeks away, the newly redistributed alignment of the American people is becoming clear. The conservative mood of the eighties; and recently as the 1994 congressional elections, have lost their steam and being as America prepares for the next century.

What the pollsters, media, Republican Party, Ross Perot, conservatives, Libertarians and Patriots have failed to comprehend is the American public has given in; as a majority, the people are clamoring for socialism. The majority of fellow countrymen have succumbed to the utopia of security, in lieu of liberty.

What communism could not achieve through armed might, they have; through the subversion of the will of the people; just as many Russian leaders had predicted.

How else could Clinton, despite a myriad of scandals this country has never witnessed before, be the beneficiary of such a commanding lead in presidential preference polls?

The Democrats have skillfully forged a new coalition consisting of women, of whom 65% indicated they will vote for Clinton; Senior citizens, of whom 72% indicate will vote for Clinton, and their historic voting base among Blacks, Jews, and a queer assortment of misfits involved in alternate lifestyles.

Absent from the old Democratic coalition is the Labor union vote, which, correctly, the Clintonites dismissed as a diminishing base.

The female preference for Clinton is startling, considering his renowned abuse of the opposite sex. This phenomena could lead many to reconsider the wisdom of the Amendment leading to suffrage. While having lunch with Kathy Gettis, Patriotic radio show host, Mrs. Gettis actually asked me why women support Bill Clinton? I answered her thustly: You tell ME why women support Clinton! Not wanting to offend my patriotic female fellow luncher, I held back the temptation to reveal the old parody about women not able to think with their heads and their petulance for falling for any good looking snake oil salesmen. Sometimes this womanly flaw results in pregnancy; in this case it results in voting for Clinton. Women even supported Mondale and Dukakis over Reagan and Bush.

If appears quite evident women are much more interested in a submissive government than liberty. America is becoming a country run by skirts.

Also providing Clinton with overwhelming voter support are minorities; including the new minorities, immigrants. Immigrants of the 90's come to America for one reason; they have heard the message loud and clear; come to America and we'll provide for you. This new breed of immigrants, unlike past Europeans, do not enter the country with the intent and skills to build the land - but to take from the land.

Almost all the immigrants entering the U.S., and the Blacks already established here, either are accustomed to, or favor, socialism. Neither the Republicans, Libertarians or the Reform Party, among others, appeal to this socialistic nature, hence the large Democratic vote.

Having established the demographics of the newly changed electorate, it can reasonably be assumed that not only will Clinton be re-elected; but the possibility of a returning Democratic Congress looms. Based on that premise what we can expect over the next four years can be summed-up in one work: Chaos!

National banishment of guns top priority

Clinton well understands if he's to implement his rule during the next term, America will have to be disarmed. Failure to do so, coupled with the socialistic agenda he has in mind, would certainly result in a second Civil War; but, without geographical boundaries. Should Clinton be able to pull a Democratic congress with him in a landslide, gun-control would be the first item on the new congresses agenda.

Clinton would be able to succeed in disarming America because it would be coupled with the UN's global disarmament plan. Claiming the entire world would be a safer, more peaceful place in which to live, combined with a friendly media campaign; disarmament would be imminent.

The result of government gun confiscation would certainly lead to armed fierce resistance which could pit police against police and soldier against soldier; and government against the people.

Clinton World Colony Plan to Expand

The current administration's enhanced land giveaway policy would be expected to escalate. The UN has already made it clear their belief that land belongs to The World Colony, not private citizens.

Expect Clinton to acquiesce to UN demands providing for UN control of all presently owned government land. The UN owned World Colony will be on it's way.

Following the One World Colony land consolidation will be the nationalization of all monetary transactions; including the establishment of One World Currency. The template for this enactment will be fairly simple: European markets and countries are just a step away from a European currency which would include Russia and the breakaway states also.

The near East could handily combine the Yen with other denominations to create an Eastern bloc of currency, America would combine the dollar with Canada, Mexico and the remainder of South America.

The result of this currency re-configuration would be the establishment of 3 world currencies. Nations not complying would soon find themselves frozen out of world markets. Compliance would then be assured.

New World Colony Money

After the establishment of a world economy based on just three currencies; the stage would be set to combine the three into One World Economy. Of course, Americans would have to surrender their current monetary assets such as CD's, balances held in bank accounts, etc. It is possible the American public could lose hundreds of millions of dollars during the exchange. Naturally The New World Colony would be there to step in and Colonize the resultant chaotic situation sure to occur.

The third element necessary to make The New World Colony feasible would be the formation of a UN led World Peacekeeping Force. Strip the subtle Peacekeeping title away and what will prevail is the United Nations World Military Force.

Already, joint military exercises involving most of the nations of the earth have been participating in these manoeuvres for the past decade. UN led practice excursions into Somalia, Haiti and Bosnia are merely table-setters for the real thing to come; the disarmament and forced currency exchange of all the world's peoples.

Clinton Likely to Serve 4 Years Hillary to GO!

Clinton's constant legal problems will haunt him the next four years; he will come dangerously close to indictment and impeachment, however, he will survive.

But, not those surrounding him. Even without Republicans controlling congress; hence discontinuation of any hearings involving the President, Special Prosecutor Kenneth Star will have enough material and time, before he is arbitrarily dismissed, to have indictments issued against Hillary and a host of White House operatives and staff.

Craig
Livingstone

Anthony Marceca

Bernard Nussbaum

William Kennedy

Likely to be indicted in 97'

Facing the prospect of indictment or impeachment himself; Clinton will offer up Hillary as the ultimate sacrificial lamb. Hillary will be disgraced and drummed out of the White House; but, will never serve imprisonment because Clinton will utilize his executive privilege of issuing a Pardon to Hillary, and possibly others. Hillary will then return to Arkansas, learn to bake cookies, and resume her so far private lesbian lifestyle in public; thereby explaining Bill's sexual misgivings with other women.

Naturally, as part of Bill and Hillary's deal, she will accept all blame for acts of transgression committed by the both of them while serving the Constitution of the United States. Which, by the way, neither one could give a rats ass for. Their allegiance is to Moscow and Israel; their career long benefactors.

Persecution of Patriots Imminent

Along with quickly implementing gun-control, the next most pressing item on the new Clinton administrations agenda will be swift all-encompassing retribution against Patriotic, Christian and Militia organizations.

Once gun-control laws are enacted, thereby lawfully compelling these groups to surrender their weapons; the Clintonites will legislate draconian anti-domestic-terrorism laws permitting the government to search, seize, and intern all members of these groups.

Of course, the patriotic community will resist both gun-confiscation and internment; thereby leading the nation into outright Civil War between the government and the vast patriotic population.

The alternative press will also be labeled as subversive, lending support and affiliation with domestic terrorist. The government, utilizing the FBI and IRS will swiftly move to shut-down these publications.

Colony News, in it's April 96 issue, predicted Clinton's forthcoming election landslide despite untold allegations of White House corruption and moral depravity. In it's article, titled: 1996-America's Last Election, We also explained the repercussions of a Clinton re-election. Despite all that's been written, conjectured, and said since April, Colony News' farsighted prediction is unfolding on schedule.

Remember, while other voices and publications get caught-up in the news of the minute, and continue hoping against hope their conspiracy revelations will change the Clinton landslide and prevent the absolute formation of The New World Colony; only Colony News has taken the Big Picture outlook in advance.

We suggest readers obtain the Colony News Special Report The Regional Breakup of America, which was published a year ago and successfully predicted the upcoming dilemma.

The results of Clinton's domestic purge will lead to replacement of the Riots in the Cities, with the Conflict in the Countryside. United Nations peacekeeping troops will be brought in to help quell the civil unrest when American troops and police become divided over fighting fellow countrymen.

Meanwhile, while conflict continues, the new administration will declare a National Emergency and socialize America, much as Roosevelt did during the national emergency times of the 30's.

Fuel and food supplies will be rationed; juries will be replaced with three-man judges' panels. Blacks and Hispanic immigrants will be the beneficiaries of the government's war on predominately White citizens making up the aforementioned groups.

Israel will be one of the foreign countries deployed under UN command to deal with America's internal unrest. Using their experience in dealing with the PLO, Jewish troops will willingly fire upon America's Christians. The Mossad, which already controls the CIA, will provide intelligence and assassination squads. These squads, having already been utilized in Clinton's behalf for the past decade will simply extend their theater of operations.

Your fate has already been decided. Take heed.

What To Expect If Dole Is Elected

By: Michael Devlin

Voting to delay the inevitable

The election of Bob Dole is improbable; we think impossible. However, because the only certainties in life are death and The New World Colony (you don't Have to pay taxes), a Dole administration scenario would pacify the potential for outright civil unrest among the populace.

First, lets discover why we believe it's impossible for Dole, or any Republican candidate, to win a presidential election in 1996.

Under Reagan, during the eighties, the Republicans forged an unbeatable coalition consisting of overwhelming voter support by White men, along with a reasonably loss of votes by women. The female vote at that time ran about 54% to 46% in favor of the Democrats; not the 64% to 36% prevalent in 1996.

Conservative, Christian and patriotic voters allied themselves at that time with the Republican cause by and large. White males, now many of which consider themselves patriotic anti-New World Colony idealists, were once the backbone of the GOP. This audience has deserted the Republican Party in favor of Pat Buchanan, Ross Perot, and Libertarian Harry Browne.

The split within these White male voters will leave forever the Republican Party in a minority status. An interesting sidelight to this development is the common interest goal of Republicans, conservatives, patriots, Reformers and Libertarians all confessing to the overriding mission of Un-Electing Clinton. Yet, their own derision over personalities and issues is Thee main reason Clinton will be re-elected.

The only agenda Dole has to offer is pacification. A Dole Presidency would delay draconian measures sure to be implemented by Clinton. This delay could possibly provide time for patriots, Christians, conservatives, reformers and Libertarians to emerge as a voice of reason and diplomacy regarding the state of America's affairs. Uniting this coalition for the purpose of defeating Clinton would, no doubt, be asking too much; but the alternative is Civil War for sure.

In a Dole administration, less restrictive gun-repossession legislation would be enacted, temporarily saving the Second Amendment for now. It could also be expected that less socialized Washington programs would become law. Spending would indeed be cut, the military restored and possibly even diminishing influence by the United Nations.

The inflammatory rhetoric against patriots and Christians would certainly be lessened, with dialog between the government and militias possible; for Dole will owe his election to these combined groups.

Would plans for The New World Colony continue? They would. But, at a decreasing pace compared to the present Clinton administration. Integration of the world's military forces would also continue to expand, as would the US territorial giveaway to the UN.

Alternative press would survive, however. But, Israeli's domination of America would continue, even though Deutch and his Mossad lead CIA buddies would surely be history; posing a temporary setback to Israel's infiltration and control of America's spy agency.

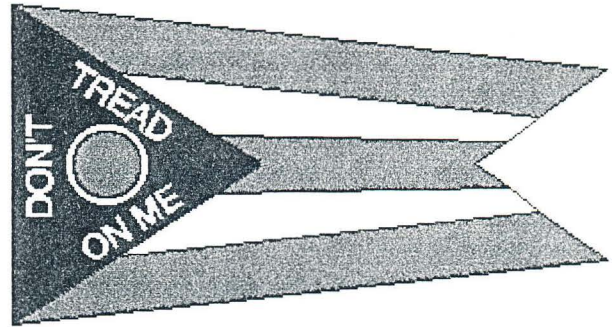

A Dole administration would also produce a Cabinet that resembles the American Populace. It would be hard to imagine Dole appointing 72% of his cabinet with Jews; even if it has been demonstrated that Vice President Kemp is another tool of the Israeli's.

America must reach a painful decision; do the people, especially the groups aforementioned, desire an explosive confrontation with the government under Clinton; or can dialog be established under Dole?

If we wish 1996 not to be America's last election, and still hold hope our fellow countrymen can work things out; then assembling all forces possible against Clinton the only recourse.

Are Militias Serving A Useful Purpose?

By: Patrick Dublin

Flying the Militia Colors

Conspiracies about this; conspiracies about that; conspiracies about everything. How many conspiracy theories can the American public withstand?

Headlines read: Militia members charged for this; charged for that; charged for everything. Is the establishment media and government concocting all the charges out of imagination? Or are there traces of substance behind the conspiracies and charges.

It's understood, even by moderate militia leaders, that a self-professed militia leader appearing on television declaring armed war against the government creates irreparable harm to militias in general. The public is easily swayed by perception; military outfitted men ranting and raving about the government will not win over any converts. On the contrary, most of the American public identifies these fatigue wearing, ranting militiamen with the patriotic community as a whole.

Nothing could be further from the truth, but, perception is reality to most.

What beguiles myself is the number of militia members arrested while in the possession of numerous firearms, explosives material and such. If one is a member of a militia, it would behoove them to be more cautious than ordinary because they know they are being monitored by the Feds.

Not long ago, one of the Montana Freeman was arrested while attempting to deliver a pickup truck full of rifles to the Freeman's ranch site. What's bewildering about this story is the Freeman in question was driving a truck load of arms in a vehicle without any tags. The same scenario was responsible for Tim McVeigh being stopped by an Oklahoma State trooper. Neither of these stops, and consequent arrests were the result of prior knowledge on the troopers part.

One has to ask, what kind of reasoning is involved in driving on state highways without license tags? Especially if one would prefer escaping detection.

Police search motorist driving without tags

Recently a vocal member of the patriotic community appeared on a patriotic radio talk show. The gentleman took the better part of two hours hurling accusations and charges against Vince Foster, his brother, his mother, Clinton, the N.W.O., trilateralists, CFRists, the government, the world, Mars and many events and people I can no longer remember.

I took the time to call the station and ask a few pointed questions of the guest; seeming as everyone calling was nodding and agreeing. I asked the guest if all he had explained was true, where was this all leading? Immediately the gentleman became defensive, as if I had the audacity to question him. His response then was he did not deal in philosophical questions or answers. He further explained he only laid out facts and charges.

I informed him this presented a problem to me, as if one is going to level charges and accusations, one must be prepared to analyze, evaluate, and frame the happenings into an understandable picture able to capture public attention. The guest then uttered I wasn't a patriot because I did not accept his word as gospel. Your damn right I didn't! I accept no one's word, but God's, as gospel. It's my right to probe, discover and question revelations of any kind.

It's pretty apparent by now, despite a barrage of conspiracy theories, the public doesn't care! Part of the reason is these never-ending conspiracies are not framed into the context of public understanding; and frankly, the people are weary of hearing them. I'm not saying conspiracies are right or wrong; I am saying the American public takes them with a grain of salt.

As displayed by Clinton's poll numbers, constant anti-militia attacks by the media and government are succeeding. The American public is becoming genuinely concerned, if not fearful, of the militia movement when they should fear their own government.

The militias vocal support of Pat Buchanan and others has actually produced the effect of chasing otherwise sympathetic citizens into the governments corner. Polls all indicate the public is resentful of government's intrusiveness yet, public support for militia and the patriotic community as a whole is declining. If it were not, Buchanan would be beating the pants off Clinton this moment.

Supposedly patriotic, anti-Clinton publications such as Spotlight cover their front pages with sordid stories derailing Bob Dole and Jack Kemp. Yet, at the same time they profess to be deeply committed to ridding the country of the Clinton gang. How do they believe they are going to accomplish this while destroying the only credible opposition Clinton has?

Do the Spotlight's publishers and backers, the Liberty Lobby, actually believe the Libertarian candidate is going to unseat Clinton? Or maybe George Washington will return, riding a white horse, and recapture the White House at the last minute.

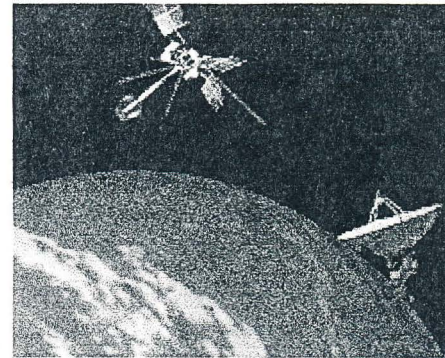

Militias need to unite, as the entire patriotic community needs to, and decide exactly what course of action they choose to follow. Do they wish to become a viable political entity? So be it. Do they wish to advocate resistance and overthrow of the current sitting government? So be it. Or do they wish to be painted by the brush that strokes them now; a loose collection of dissatisfied citizens, some political, some militant.

Militias, and the patriotic community, need desperately to unite behind a single cause, as other minority groups have learned to do. Patriots can exercise power by promoting their agenda to the American people in a manner clearly unimpeachable and relevant to America's basic concerns.

The American public is not interested in a Salinas-Clinton conspiratorial relationship; or the deep cover involvement of American assets abroad; nor the worn over Whitewater misgivings. Hell, the public is not even concerned with the rampant teenage drug increased the past four years.

The average American citizen is consumed by daily problems, such as housing expenses, the kids, food on the table, repairs to the auto, fixing the house, keeping their job, paying insurance, bills etc. They have no time left for conspiracies; whether true or not.

Is most everything patriots and militias warn about true? Yes, it certainly is. We warn the public also. But, until patriots address real red meat everyday issues, the bulk of their more important messages will continue to go unheeded.

Views From The Satellite Colonies

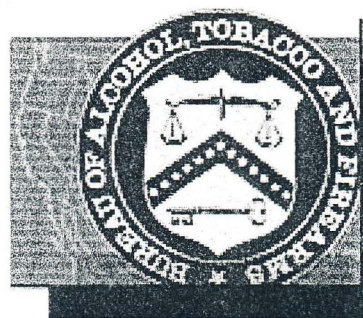

Our Favorite Alternative Press publications, despite being seldom mentioned by fellow patriots, are Lawrence Patterson's Criminal Politics and Clayton Douglas's The Free American. Criminal Politics is head and shoulders above Media Bypass and Spotlight for pure in-depth informational content. It's price is steep but, well worth it. Much more moderately priced is The Free American, which has moved locations from Tijeras, NM, to Bingham, NM. Although Free American publishes articles possibly read before, it gives plenty of space for entire stories. The Free American also permits other patriotic publications to advertise, a policy Spotlight is afraid to indulge in.

Colony News readers have long been well-informed about the pretense of fairness C-SPAN portrays. For the past year Colony News, it's publisher, editor, staff and hundreds of readers have petitioned C-SPAN to offer journalist from alternative press publications onto it's morning political call-in show. C-SPAN's response up to now has been to dedicate it's phone lines for Democratic, Republican and others to call. The scam is this: try calling others and naming Criminal Politics, Colony News, the Patriot Report or such in order to get on-air. Won't happen. So Colony

News has asked it's readers-and they have responded-to write and call Brian Lamb demanding equal time for patriots. Finally Lamb gave in and invited Spotlight on the show. What bothers us is after besieging C-SPAN for a year, Spotlight is so gleeful it immediately publishes the biggest ass-kissing article praising CEO Lamb and C-SPAN. Did not anyone at Spotlight know 100% of C-SPAN's funding comes from the very same Jewish establishment media they write about so constantly. Colony News readers know C-SPAN is funded by cable TV monopolies who are 80% owned by such patriotic publishers as the NY Times, Washington Post, LA Times, Gannet, Knight-Ridder, Time Warner, and Newsweek. Founding for Spotlight to sit at that table was also provided by the same cable companies that provide our daily dose of smut. Where's the Principles fellows.

Oklahoma City bombing suspect was reported to have a hand-drawn map of the Murrah building on his Herington, KS property, according to FBI (like we really believe anything they say) agents. The hand-doodled map does not name any street or building; for that matter the map doesn't even name Oklahoma City as the drawings site. Meanwhile, hanging Judge Matsch has refused all requests so far proposed by Tim McVeigh's attorneys. Surprise. David Lane wrote an article for Colony News describing the justice system under Matsch.

Documents indicate the BATF pursues a disproportionate amount of case investigation within rural areas rather than cities. This is enlightening in that the majority of crime, and statistics prove it, originate in heavily populated city environs. The unbalanced case load may assure those who believe the BATF's mission is politically driven; as the preponderance of patriots are more likely to reside in rural areas, especially the West and the rural South, where BATF activity has been concentrated.

Guinea Pig school children diagnosed with Attention Deficit Disorder (ADD) are being injected with Methylphenidate, commonly known as Ritalin. It's classified as a Schedule II controlled substance (wonder if the White House has tried it yet) in the same category as cocaine and methadone. The 1991 Individuals with Disabilities Act recognized ADD as a handicap prompting the Education Dept. to direct all state districts to establish procedures necessary to identify ADD children. Once identified, the flow of taxpayer money began. Letters sent home to parents brag the schools will use this new revenue to add more services for children who require special service. Once children are diagnosed with ADD, school health officials have the authority to treat them by prescribing medications such as Ritalin, Valium, Lorazepam and Prozac. Guinea Pig education has arrived with your child the specimen.

The tragic cause of Flight 800 still has not been revealed, although Colony News reported an errant Army helicopter missile as the culprit. At first concealed, then admitted to; both the Navy and Army have confessed to conducting night training exercised off-shore of the crash site. These exercises did include live ammo and armed air-to-air attack helicopter gunships. In the latest weekly briefing, even the establishment media bombarded the FBI's chief investigator with question after question regarding the possibility our military is covering-up one of it's most tragic accidents (we pray to God it was an accident, or we better all take to the hills this very moment) But pictorial and eyewitness evidence is growing depicting a missile as the cause. What we're not sure of is the FBI covering-up the military's cover-up; or is the FBI being deliberately lied to by the military. Even authorities in charge of the investigation are having a hard time convincing themselves a terrorist bomb was the reason for the loss of 230 lives. Our guess is the FBI is being straight with the military doing the skullduggery. An FBI agent not assigned to the case told Colony News his compadres are plenty pissed-off at what they feel as being jerked around by the Navy and Army.

Cooperative Osprey was a joint military exercise held at Camp Lejeune, NC and participated in by forces of US, Canadian, Dutch, Albanian, Austrian, Georgian, Moldavian, Ukrainian, Polish, Romanian, Bulgarian, Hungarian, Slovakian, Central Asian and Baltic origins. It's purpose was to provide participants training in peacekeeping force protection measures under NATO command. Also to enhance participants' ability to plan and execute military training exercises in peacekeeping and humanitarian operations. Could they be tasting US soil for further expectations? By the way; Under NATO Command really means Under UN Command. The same difference. Ask the Bosians.

In Spotlights Sept.23 issue, a two-page ad from Dennis Lee's Better World Technology appears. In it's Editor column, Spotlight warns it's readers about the dangers of involving oneself with Mr. Lee's seminars; as they could lead to parlaying a sizable amount of money for an unproved, yet unproduced product. After accepting Mr. Lee's considerable contribution for 2 full-page advertisements, the paper writes: The Spotlight honors the principles of Freedom of Speech. That's what we are all about. So Dennis Lee has the right to say and promise what he wants in a paid ad. So how come the Spotlight, in it's all about tradition of freedom of speech refuses to allow other patriotic publications to exercise their Free Speech by advertising. After all, patriotic publications are not enticing unsuspecting citizens to invest huge amounts of money in a patriotic ponzi scheme.

Speaking of Dennis Lee and his Better World Technologies invention promising all the electricity you can consume for only 10 cents a month. Get A Life!! And for all you would be investors: Keep Your Day Job!!

Lexis-Nexis has compiled quite a database of 300 million people worldwide. It includes private information regarding bank accounts, including the customer's service number. The information came from Transunion, one of the nations largest and unsavory debt collection agencies. The FBI may be investigating.

House Resolution #3308, the U.S. Armed Forces Protection Act of 1996 is an illegal transfer of congressional authority to the executive branch. The bill is a camouflaged attempt to place America soldiers under foreign commanders within the realm of the United Nations. HR #3308 would give the President, not Congress, authority to deploy American servicemen and women to remote lands under UN or foreign supervision.

Eight more Militia members were arrested in Washington State and charged with the manufacture and possession of explosive devices, conspiracy and possession of a machine gun. Those arrested in Billingham, WA were William Smith, 60. John Pitner, 45. Judy Kirk, 54. John Kirk, 56. Fredrick Fisher, 61. Gary Kuehnoel, 48. Marlin Mack, 24.

There seems to be a continuing number of cases involving militia members charged with explosives possession. Bob Starr and company in Georgia, the Arizona Vipers, and now the people charged in Washington State. Maybe the government has drummed all these incidents up; maybe their all bogus charges; but militia members had better be pretty careful around bomb-making materials. Our recommendation to militia members is stay away from explosives. It presents a bad public image and enhances the militant picture the media portrays.

Wild Weather continues. Hurricanes marching up and down the Eastern seaboard like a destructive parade. Heat searing the West. Floods in NC, VA, W. VA, and then a hurricane in the Pacific which deluges Texas after a year of drought. For the second year in a row, there were more hurricanes in the Atlantic than the Pacific, almost unheard of. Food prices and supplies remain tenuous at best.

We would like to see patriotic groups become involved in food distribution, assisting the Red Cross during times of natural disaster, helping the homeless etc. Some groups probably already do, but no one ever hears about it. Militia's organizing to perform charitable deeds would go a long way to creating a positive image among the public. Lets raise a half-full glass up and present positive solutions.

I used to think that I was just an ordinary American. I don't commit crimes. I donate time in the community. I volunteered and served four years during World War II. I am against gun control. I believe in the constitution.

I prefer to live in a safe neighborhood, and that all people should be treated fairly and equally. That seems to make me a racist. I believe that our government should enforce our immigration laws, so the media labels that xenophobic. I believe in the bible, and that makes me homophobic. I think that our government should stop giving away our children's' money to foreign countries. That makes me anti-Semitic. I believe that our first priority should be to defend America, not peacekeeping all over the world. Now I am an isolationist.

I think that our criminal justice system needs to be radically overhauled. I can't trust an administration that repeatedly issues illegal executive orders; a congress that seems to give priority to special interest groups; and a court that distorts our constitution for political purposes.

I now know what I am. I am a patriotic, Christian American.

Ostensibly the hands of time has come full circle to whereas we are once again caught up in total government. We as a people by nature are supposed to be free and independent and hold certain inalienable rights according to Article I, Section I, of the NJ State Constitution. Sadly to say, this wonderful philosophy no longer prevails in our state or throughout the nation. We have become socialized and dependent upon government for every want. Therefore, true liberty cannot ring throughout our land.

Our form of government was not founded upon socialism, but rather upon the individuals inalienable God given rights, which brought about law and order. Obviously, we are lacking both law and order, for this system which prevails today has raped us of our dignity, our land, our money, and our responsibility. It uses the lives of our young men for foreign wars. Simply put, it has trespassed upon the laws of nature and it has gone beyond its proper function.

To end this socialistic madness, you the individual must once again rise to the occasion and become that strong rugged American who holds reverence to their God, family and country. You the American must seek freedom and come out of a system which despises and deprives you (us) of our God given rights to life, liberty, and property.

Through a set of resolutions which I have enclosed we are endeavoring to return to a philosophy which promotes freedom and justice for all. Our mission is to inform the people of NJ and finally bring these resolutions to the State Assembly. We are seeking your help to spread the word of liberty.

Drew Foster, Monetary System

Emerson Elliott, Fully Informed Jury Assoc.

Bob Figueroa, Clean Air Act

Resolutions To The State Of New Jersey

We, the sons and daughters of liberty here-by demand that the state of NJ restrain itself of improper functions and recognize that the individual is the sovereign. Therefore, we have the right to lawfully demand the following from the State of NJ through these resolutions.

WE DEMAND

- The State must maintain at all times its proper function of being superior to Federal Government and utilize the right to interposition which is reserved in the Tenth Amendment. It must remove and terminate all laws both Federal and State which violate and obstruct the peaceable pursuit of the individuals happiness.
- Stop all illegal taxation such as the state income tax and property tax.
- The state protect those individuals who wish to lawfully terminate their contract of voluntary compliance with the Federal Government income tax.
- All persons who are incarcerated in State or Federal prisons in NJ for their attempt to lawfully end their contract with Federal or State income tax contracts, must be freed at once.
- That the State of NJ must force the Federal Government which is the creation of these United States, to return to a lawful monetary system under Article I Section 8 - clause 5 of the United States Constitution. And to abolish the privately owned Federal Reserve System to whom the United States is indebted.
- That jurors be informed that they have the power to judge the law as well as the evidence; and that should a jury determine that a defendant is guilty under the law but that the law is unjust or unjustly applied to the defendant the jury may find the defendant either not guilty or guilty of a lesser charge.

- To promote the general welfare of the people by protecting those individuals who wish to become free and independent of and not limited to, socialistic Social Security System.
- That no citizen of State of NJ be subject to conscription for the use of any type of US military action abroad or for any type of UN operation.
- That at no time should there be any type of deployment of UN troops or foreign troops in the State of NJ.
- The stoppage of all NJ tax money which supplies or has the potential to supply the UN either directly or indirectly.
- That at no time should the UN obtain jurisdiction over NJ's use of land, air, water, and its waterway usage. Nor should it assume any type of authority in any capacity what so ever over the State of NJ.
- That the State of NJ keep within the spirit of Article I Section I of the NJ State Constitution. Therefore, the State of NJ should return to its proper function of protecting all individual property owners and purchasers of property from any unconstitutional Federal or State agencies, such as and not limited to EPA, DEP, which has the potential of eating out our substance and destroying the individuals right to property.
- The State of NJ to make null and void the Standard State Zoning Enabling Act of 1923.
- That the forfeiture laws which are criminal in nature are also very obstructive towards justice and tremendously violent towards the spirit of liberty, must cease, for those laws negate the principles which this nation was founded. The forfeiture laws have destroyed the preamble of the US Constitution, the preamble to the Bill of Rights, and the State of NJ's Constitutions' preamble. These laws made null and void the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th, Amendments to the US Constitution. Therefore, these fascist laws which a free self government nation has absolutely no room for, must be abolished immediately! Furthermore all law abiding persons who had the misfortune of these acts of tyranny must be reimbursed, not with tax money, or their property returned.

- That the State of NJ will not at any time participate in the Federally mandated National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993 or any other program, state or federal, which uses conscription of the youth of this state to participate in community service. Nor shall the State of NJ use any money collected through taxation for said purposes.
- The government of the State of NJ assert our rights under the 10th Amendment by permanently suspending implementation of the Clean Air Act of 1990, thus declaring it null and void.
- The State of NJ to cease forcing vaccinations on to a free people.
- That the State of NJ abide by our own guiding document, the NJ State Constitution preamble and Article I Section I, and the Bill of Rights, Amendments 2,4,5,10, to the US Constitution in making null and void all gun laws including registration and licensing which restricts the good people of their inherent rights.
- That the State of NJ abolish the NJ National Guard. This organization founded in 1903, has been Federalized under title 32 US Code, therefore it has become part of the armed forces which are under direction of the UN through Public Law 87-297, Title 22 US Code, State Department Document 7277, PDD 25.
- We demand the replacing of this standing army, which has the potential to threaten our security, with a lawful all voluntary militia.

- That the State of NJ declare it's independence from the March 6 and 9, 1993 National Emergency Act and its Amendments which nullified both State and United Constitution. This Act, which is a carry over of the 1917 Trading with the Enemy Act, which was designed to meet war time exigencies (Senate Report 93-549 pp 4-5, Article I Section 8, Clause 11 US Code) has not been repealed in full. Therefor this government (defacto) has assumed complete jurisdiction over our lives, liberty, and property.

Enclosed are some poems that I wrote about 10 years ago that no publisher will print for what I believe are obvious reasons.

They seem to represent ideas that fit your philosophy, so if you wish to use one now and then for a filler in some empty space please feel free to use them in any way that you choose.

Americans tend to think they are free
Most unaware of the hidden reality
We have a huge deficit every year
Caused by a Congress that without fear
Spends our money like there is no end

Each year the deficit adds to the debt
Because politicians overspend the money they set
The debt grows constantly bigger and bigger
It's now so big that on one can figure
How can we ever repay what we owe

But, the eyes of the bankers gleam with joy
As they our freedom they seek to destroy
It's the interest that we pay on the debt
That soon will take all the money we get
And we can never repay the debt

The bankers in taxes and interest will get every cent
As they raise the interest on money they lent
The time for freedom is running out fast
We are becoming their debt-slaves at last Wake up America. It's almost too late.
